

Third Grade Newsletter

October 22, 2010

Earlier this week we brought blankets, towels and mats outside in the garden. Using our senses, we wrote in our notebooks about what we saw, heard, and felt. Many of the writings were very descriptive.

We have been studying about weather. We learned about “precipitation” and types of storms. We have also been using map skills to identify places and landmarks in Massachusetts.

The highlight of the week has been our field trip to the Science Museum. Please ask your child what they learned during the visit.

There is tutoring on Saturday from 10:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m. Let me know if your child will be attending by Friday morning.

If you need to contact me, my email is:
cmccarthy@missiongrammar.org

Have a wonderful weekend!